The AI Web Agency, a leading provider of cutting-edge digital marketing solutions, is proud to introduce its revolutionary AI-powered video Technology as part of a new agency service for businesses to engage and convert high-intent potential clients at a fraction of the cost of traditional advertising.

The AI Web Agency's new service utilizes AI technology to enhance and help produce 60-second professional videos with relevant keywords, phrases, focus words with geotargeting that are optimized for search engine ranking. The new done-for-your service includes production and syndication to post and promote videos that attract interested potential clients for businesses. Unlike traditional advertising, these video ads feature highly targeted ranking in geographic and specific niche audiences that bring engaged traffic for a fraction of the cost of traditional advertising.

Additionally, through the power of AI technology, the service offers the ability for business owners, or spokespersons to clone their voice to carry the brand voice while increasing engagement and continuity for the best possible customer experience. This voice-cloning technology offers increased branding for the business that are looking for cost and time-efficient ways to produce engaging content.

“Our new AI-powered video technology is crafted with an intent to deliver highly engaging, high-ranking, and conversion-optimized video content that aligns seamlessly with a brand’s voice and message,” said Adam Wills, CEO and Founder at the AI Web Agency.

The AI-Powered technology goes a step further by ensuring that videos are optimized with keywords, phrases, and offerings pertinent to each business, driving relevant viewers and potential clients to the content. By embedding SEO optimization within the video and its transcript, businesses can anticipate attracting high-converting traffic, exponentially more valuable per view or click compared to traditional advertising methodologies.

Built on years of research, the system has been designed and tested to boost conversions, ensuring that businesses aren’t just seen, but also heard and remembered by their audiences.

In celebration of the launch, The AI Web Agency is presenting an exclusive, limited-time offer: a complimentary professional 60-second video ad package, typically valued at $799.
